Texico student ties for third

Texico High School junior Jennifer Campos tied a Santa Rosa student for third place in the annual Youth Kicking Tobacco's Butt Advocate of the Year contest, according to a press release from New Mexico Voices for Children.

The awards honor New Mexico middle and high school students demonstrating leadership in educating their peers about the dangers of tobacco use.

Campos has worked with Students Concerned About Tobacco for three years. She took part in the Great American Smoke Out, and with her SCAT group, presented fourth graders information about the harmful effects of tobacco.
